Hi,

Federal Communications Commission
Office of the Secretary

I know Mr. Powell himself doesn't read these, but if my voice counts at all for some tally board of public opinion, please put a mark in the "Nay!" column for AOL.

When they merged with Time Warner, you told AOL it would have to open its Instant Messaging system before it could offer advanced services (like video). Now it's coming back to you and asking you to announce that your own decision wasn't a good one and should be overturned. Don't let them get away with it!
